“FIRST WOMEN” of Sonoma County

Please join us in a conversation with these groundbreaking women as we learn how they came to be “First Woman” in their legal fields.

The Honorable Gayle Guynup (Ret.) is the first woman to be appointed to the Sonoma County bench. She has demonstrated a lifelong commitment to improving our community through her work as a judge, lawyer, philanthropist, and social advocate.

Ms. Kathleen Pozzi is the first woman to serve as Public Defender for Sonoma County. She is dedicated to empowering people to improve their lives and to find justice in the court system. Ms. Pozzi is actively involved in addressing immigration issues, homelessness, and mental health concerns which are prevalent in our county.

Ms. Jill Ravitch is the first woman to be elected as District Attorney of Sonoma County. As the county’s top law enforcement officer, Ms. Ravitch has worked with the courts, defense bar, social advocacy groups, and members of the public to ensure that the ends of justice are met equitably and efficiently.
